Commercial Dispute Resolution and Settlement Strategy Training Course

Ref: 12_10894 Date: 25 – 29 July 2027 Location: Manama Fees: 4300 GBP

Programme Summary

Commercial dispute resolution and settlement strategy is a one-week training course for senior commercial leaders at strategic level, culminating in a dispute resolution playbook for their own client and partner portfolio. Disputes with clients, distributors and suppliers can freeze revenue and end valuable relationships. The approach equips leaders to diagnose a dispute early, select the right resolution route and negotiate settlements that protect value and the relationship. Mars Training Centre UK delivers this programme in commercial dispute resolution and settlement strategy.

The Business Case

Most commercial disputes are settled by the people who own the relationship, yet they rarely follow a structured method. Settlement offers are improvised and contract escalation steps are ignored until positions harden. Leaders who assess exposure early, use agreed escalation steps and negotiate from interests rather than positions recover revenue sooner and keep accounts that would otherwise be lost.

- Revenue at Risk: Shortens the period in which invoices, renewals and orders are frozen by an unresolved disagreement.
- Cost and Duration of Disputes: Reduces external legal spend and management time by resolving matters at the lowest effective tier.
- Account Retention: Preserves strategic client and channel relationships by separating the commercial issue from the relationship.

Principles and Evidence Base

- Interest-Based Negotiation: The principled negotiation model of the Harvard Negotiation Project Fisher and Ury reframes positions into interests and options in Session 2.
- BATNA Analysis: The best alternative to a negotiated agreement sets walk-away points and settlement ranges in Session 2.
- Multi-Tier Dispute Resolution Clauses: Tiered escalation from executive negotiation to mediation and arbitration is redesigned in Session 3.
- ICC Mediation Rules and ICC Arbitration Rules: Institutional procedures are compared for timing, confidentiality and enforceability in Session 4.

Intended Participants

- Leaders accountable for revenue from key clients, distributors or partners where disagreements put renewals at risk.
- Executives who authorise settlement offers, credit notes and concessions in disputed contracts.
- Senior managers who lead escalation meetings with counterparts and brief legal advisers.
- Commercial leaders who shape the dispute and escalation terms of new contracts.

The programme serves sales, key account, contracts and commercial functions in construction, energy, technology and distribution.

- Suggested activity: Rewriting the escalation clause of a technology services contract in peer review.
- Suggested activity: Choosing a resolution route for a distributor termination dispute.

Capstone Output

Each participant completes a dispute resolution playbook for their own portfolio. It contains an exposure assessment template, a negotiation plan with BATNA and settlement range, recommended escalation clause wording, a route selection matrix and a relationship recovery checklist, ready for account teams and for briefing legal advisers.

Frequently Asked Questions

Does commercial dispute resolution training suit senior commercial leaders rather than lawyers?

Yes. It is written for leaders who own client, partner and supplier relationships. It assumes experience of commercial contracts but no legal qualification.

Which models underpin commercial dispute resolution and settlement strategy training?

It rests on principled negotiation from the Harvard Negotiation Project, BATNA analysis, multi-tier dispute resolution clause design and the ICC Mediation Rules and ICC Arbitration Rules.

How is the playbook from commercial dispute resolution training used at work?

You can use it as the standard approach for account teams when a disagreement emerges, and as a briefing pack when legal advisers or mediators become involved.
